Forecast For Northern Ireland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Thursday 18 Mar 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly cloudy today, a little drizzle in north.

Today:
A mostly cloudy day with low cloud towards the North Coast thick enough to give a little drizzle. Some bright spells may develop in the southeast in the afternoon, becoming mild in any sunshine. Maximum temperature 11 deg C (52 deg F).

Tonight:
Some clear periods possible across the east this evening and overnight. Otherwise staying cloudy, chance of a little drizzle across the far north. Brisk northwesterly along the east coast. Minimum temperature 5 deg C (41 deg F).

Friday:
A cloudy start but some sunshine breaking through in the afternoon, the northwest may stay rather cloudy. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
A mainly dry but often cloudy few days ahead. Some brightness likely at times, feeling mild in any sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.